

Gustav Norberg was born in Sweden in 1983.

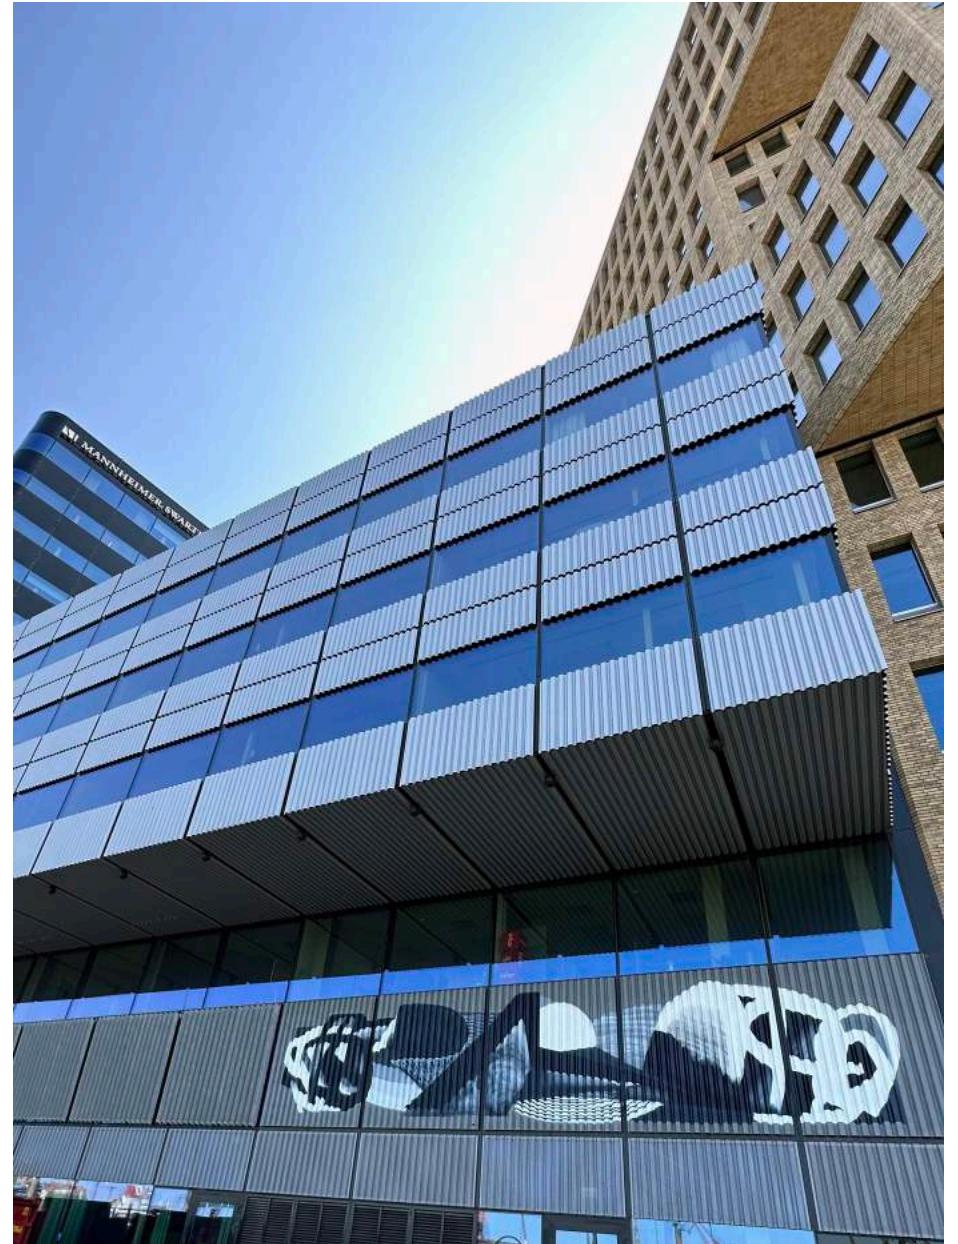

His practice mainly consists of public work through wall-paintings and studio work on canvas. He got involved with the practice of making art when painting graffiti on walls alongside train tracks as a young teenager. Today his work on walls no longer focuses on letters or the tag/alter ego. In its place a pictorial universe based on abstraction and a play with shapes, structure and depth has emerged. His work can be described as abstract post-graffiti and puts a large focus on the meeting of a rational logic and of abstract imagery.

His early studio work is often painted largely monochromatic with only small elements of color. Focused largely on form with strong contrasts through the use of black and white paint but also a more subtle expression with the infinite number of gray scales that can occur between the extremes of black and white. There is a structural logic based on geometry, architecture and graffiti visible in all his paintings although this logic is increasingly being challenged. The nature of his art invites the viewer to a journey of discovery in one's own imagination, to follow along through detours and sidetracks, to interpret the work based on one's own inner world, personality and truth.
